Dear Mr. Pruitt, I wanted to take a few moments to ask you to do your best to uphold the EPA's fine standard of policing corporations who will attempt to save money at every corner at the expense of the health and well being of every citizen in the US. I know you are familiar with the history of the EPA - why it exists - the rivers on fire, toxins dumped in rivers and canals. I don't want to have to pay for un-treatable cancers and shortened lives.

You must be extremely judicious when weighing the costs of implementing and not implementing regulations. Climate change is no hoax. The men and women who have checked and re-checked their models and research are doing it for our protection.

When the coastal areas flood, when tornadoes rip through the mid-west in stranger and stranger seasons, when unprecedented rainfalls tear out the hearts of city after river hugging city - there will be a cost. And we will bear that cost. Pay now or pay later.

Do the right thing.

Sincerely, James Moffett
